

Studio & Showroom
Masterton

WAIS 1488
Janine Ogg & Sam Ludden

Phone (06) 377 4882
Dirty Fingers Pottery

Sam Ludden has literally come a long way from the lad who never minded getting his hands dirty. With an interest in pottery sparked as a sixth former back in 1995, he was led to Wanganui Polytechnic, where potter Paul Melser had sent him to complete his degree in Ceramics Design and Production. Since those days, Sam is commissioned internationally for his creations, so it is the Wairarapas' gain to have him living and working back in our region. His work has resulted in periods from 3 months up to 2 years, living in such countries as China, England and France, Another invitation to sculpture, will see the family on the move, living in China through August/September 2011.

Best results come through, if a potter well knows his kiln, as a baker knows their oven.

Samuel Ludden, Janine Ogg and their delightful Isabella, 5 months, at Dirty Fingers studio/workshop.

Some of the pieces in the showroom. WAIS people can cover 50% purchase prices in Green $$.

It was after returning from 2 years in France that the Dirty Fingers Pottery was born in Masterton back in 2005. Samuel works to incorporate an environmental message behind his all sculptures, a theme that fully resonates with Janine. Both are committed deeply to the nurturing and protection of the environment. Aiming to leave the world a better place than they found it, they promote sustainability education, organizations, events and happenings. Janine is the driving force behind Wai Not Go Green website at www.wainotgogreen.org for Wairarapa folk wanting to help or learn more.

